Dmitry Bulatov: Contemporary Art and Techno-biological Hybridisation

“Today innovation is the result of complex interactions between individuals, organizations and external factors. Turning to the metaphor of evolution one can say that the rule “the more adapted to the environment survives” is substituted by the rule “anything that conveys the environment more precisely survives”. In the process of continuous complication of systems new correlations emerge between cognitive knowledge and effective model, logic and image, reality and representation. The development of new interdisciplinary relations in the sphere of contemporary knowledge, from science to contemporary art, from the methods of data processing to the methods of metaphor presentation, is particularly influenced by the progress in the filed of techno-biological research. Hence new domains appear that combine various methods of scientific and artistic representation based on techno-biological modeling. In the new reality, which becomes more and more artificial and media-conditioned, a new sign regime is established, which cancels the historically shaped boundaries between nature and culture, natural science and humanitarian technologies. In these conditions it’s quite natural when a researcher after having analyzed the characteristics of the contemporary techno-biological domain wants to comprehend the way they impact the development of new artistic strategies and the essence of their novelty.”
Dmitry Bulatov is an artist, researcher and art theorist. His research focuses on different aspects of interdisciplinary art media (robotics, genetic engineering, nanotechnology, etc.). Author of many articles on contemporary art published in Russia and abroad, as well as books and anthologies. His artworks have been presented in various national and international exhibitions, and in 2007 one of his art works was named in the The Top 10 New Organisms of the Year, selected by Wired magazine. Organizer and curator of more than 20 international sci-art projects, Bulatov has since 1998 been curator at the Kaliningrad Branch of the National Centre for Contemporary Art in Russia.

Claudia Gianetti: Acting On The Code – Some Reflections on Image, Apparatus and Viewer

“The transition from formal use of the code for creating artistic generative processes (with results outside the machine) to reflections on the art of the code (an internal process of the machine) in a specific sense of code performance changes the notion of programmed images, the connotation of visualisation of image through art process, and the cognitive involvement of spectator with the art work. This talk aims to explore aspects of these issues.”

Claudia Gianetti specializes in Contemporary Art and Media Art. A theoretician, a writer and an exhibitions and cultural events curator. Full invited Professor at the University of Évora, Visual Arts Department. Took her PhD from the University of Barcelona with a dissertation about Aesthetics of the Digital. She has curated more than hundreds activities: exhibitions, congresses, symposiums, festival and events in national and international museums and institutions world-wide.

Atau Tanaka: Music One Participates In: Performance from Stage to Street to Pocket

“Digital music has undergone fundamental shifts – it has gone real time, it has become interactive, it has become miniaturized, and completely democratized. I’ll map out my personal trajectory in this time to look at broader evolutions in the field with sensors, networks, and mobility. These are not just technological changes, but changes that bring about shifts in musical approaches. Form factors change, analogue is reconciled with digital, and new directions in Open Source and DIY culture continue to challenge our assumptions on what it means to be an artist, composer, performer, participant, in these evolving musical/technological landscapes.”

Atau Tanaka bridges the fields of media art, experimental music, and research. He worked at IRCAM, was Artistic Ambassador for Apple France, has been researcher at Sony Computer Science Laboratory Paris, and was an Artistic Co-Director of STEIM in Amsterdam. Atau creates sensor-based musical instruments for performance, and is known for his work with biosignal interfaces. He seeks to harness collective musical creativity in mobile environments, seeking out the continued place of the artist in democratized digital forms. His work has been presented at Ars Electronica, SFMOMA, Eyebeam, V2, ICC, and ZKM and has been mentor at NESTA. He is Chair of Digital Media at Newcastle University and is Director of Culture Lab.

RE-NEW DIGITAL ARTS FESTIVAL

The annual re-new digital arts festival presents a wide selection of the newest ground-breaking works in digital music, video, installations, performative, and distributed / collaborative art.
